

SIZE CHART FOR WOMEN'S CLOTHING

All measurements in the table are body measurements, not actual garment measurements. measure circumferences using a tape measure, as follows: chest size where the chest is largest [a], waist size at the narrowest part [b] and hip size where the hips are broadest [c]. The measuring tape should sit firmly around the body, but not too tight. arm length is measured from the shoulder to the wrist [d].

SIZE CHART FOR GLOVES

In the table are body measurements, not actual glove measurements. use a tape to measure all the way around your hand at the widest part, excluding your thumb. The measurement in inches is your glove size. if you are right-handed, measure your right and if you are left-handed, measure your left hand. We recommend rounding up to the nearest half inch size.

SIZE CHART FOR HELMETS

All measurements in the table are body measurements, not actual helmet measurements. use a measuring tape to measure your head circumference. The tape should sit just above the ears and wrap around the center of the forehead and the back of your skull. The eu helmet size equals the head circumference in centimeters. The helmet should sit as low as possible, and be a snug fit, so that it doesn't move when you shake your head around.

SIZE CHARTS FOR FOOTWEAR

It is important that all measurements for tall riding boots are made in the sitting position. When trying to find good fitted boots please add/allow at least a few mm to your actual body measurements for movement allowance. height: measure from the floor and up to the outside of the knee. calf: measure around the widest part of the calf. (note: measure over both socks and breeches!)

SIZE CHART FOR RUGS

All measurements in the table are horse body measurements, not actual rug measurements. To obtain the EU rug size, measure the horse's back from the withers to the base of the tail in centimetres (A); alternatively, to obtain the UK/US rug size in inches, or in feet and inches, measure from the horse's chest to the rump (B).

SIZE CHART FOR BRIDLES

While bridle sizes generally will fit horse sizes according to the size chart, horse head sizes do vary, and you should test the bridle first to make sure it is a good fit. When the bridle is on, there should be a hand's width between the chin strap and the horse's jaw, two fingers' width between the noseband and the horse's nose, and you should be able to fit two fingers under the browband. The browband must not be so tight that it pinches behind the horse's ears, nor be so long that it pulls the bridle forward.

SIZE CHART FOR BITS

When measuring the bit size, always measure the length from the inside of one bit ring (or cheekpiece) to the inside of the opposite one. make sure the bit is straightened. The thickness of the bit is always measured just inside the bit ring. When placed in the horse's mouth, there's should be max. 5mm (1/4") play on either side of the bit.

SIZE CHART FOR GIRTHS & STIRRUPS

To measure the length of the girth you need, start with placing the saddle pad and saddle on the horse. using a tape measure, measure the distance from the middle billet hole on one side of the saddle to the same position on the other side. The tape should be placed about one hand's width behind the horse's elbow. This measurement equals the size of the girth, as saddles have different sizes and strap lengths, it may be necessary to measure for a new girth if you change your saddle. To switch between short (dressage) and long girths, add or subtract about 20 inches [51 cm] respectively.
